The Next Morning
Tom Whalen
"I'm going to pieces," Rodin said one sunny morning getting out of bed. "I've been bitten by miniscule monsters. And the giant eye that swirls in the fluid, what of it?"

The silence descended and he began to chew softly the air above his head until he made a space large enough to slip his body into. Which is how I found him when I came in.

"What are you doing without your spacesuit?" I asked.